Read interesting facts about Egyptian Mummies and Mummification. A mummy is the body of a person that has been preserved by artificial means after death. Unlock the treasure chest which shows the correct answer to the geometry problem in one of our best area and perimeter games. The Gebelein predynastic mummies are six naturally mummified bodies, dating to approximately 3400 BC from the Late Predynastic period of Ancient Egypt. In the Old Kingdom, kings first built pyramids for their own tombs surrounded by stone mastaba tombs for their high officials. The fact that most high officials were also royal relatives suggests another motivation for such placement: these complexes were also family cemeteries.
